Steam in a storm

Age: minimum 6 years

Number of participants: minimum 8

Description:

Before the game begins, the outline of a boat is drawn on the ground in chalk. All players enter the boat. The leader of the game, as captain, explains the technical terms of the boat: stern = aft tip, bow = forward port = left direction, starboard = right. He then tells the passengers that the ship has been in a violent storm and can only be saved from sinking by quickly moving the ship's weights (the passengers). Therefore, on the captain's command, the passengers must move to the side of the ship that is indicated. All players who misdirect or fall overboard (violate the mark) are out of the game.
