Who isn't there?

materials needed: blanket or large piece of cloth

Course of the game

Participants move around the designated area with their eyes closed and arms outstretched.

After some time the leader approaches someone quietly, touches his shoulder and the touched kneels down and is covered with a blanket.

At the whistle everyone stops, freezes in one position and opens his eyes. It is important that no one moves his head.

Now everyone tells the others whom he has in his field of vision. The task is that the group together must determine which of the participants has been covered with a blanket. After they guess the game is repeated.
