Look! Look!

This game is all about theatrics, and in the process, everyone wins.

Gameplay

Two groups must be formed - a guessing team and an acting group.

Both groups face each other (at the end of the field on their finish line).

The actors work together to think of a place (even international), an occupation typical there, and a movement characteristic of that occupation.

The two teams stride towards each other, with the first actors saying, "Here we come!" The guessing team asks, "Where are you from?" The actors say their location. The guessing team: "What do you do?" "Look here, look here!" The actors show the movement until the guessing team guesses correctly.

Now it's time for the actors to make their way across the finish line to safety. Whoever gets caught goes on the other team.
