The game is related to the theme "Secret of the Wild Forest". The aim of the game is to build huts with pre-prepared materials.

The children divide into 2 teams. In front of them there is a board with a drawn table. On the board there are different categories with questions and the numbers from 1 to 6 that match those on a dice for the game. One team chooses a category and rolls the die, whatever number came up on the tazo question they answer. If they answer correctly they get a point, if they answer incorrectly the other team has a chance to answer. At the end of the game, the team with the most points gets to choose, in accordance with how many points they have, that number of materials to build the hut.

The game ends when all questions have been answered and the huts have been built.
